Welcome to Newark

As New Jersey's largest city, Newark is home to generations of Americans drawn by economic opportunity, cultural offerings, quality of life and superior location. Much of Newark's charm lies in its wealth of recreational and cultural attractions. Our city abounds with music, history, fine dining and entertainment. There is a treasure trove of art and artifacts at galleries and museums, exciting professional sports, world-class performances and family fun offered by minor league baseball, festivals and fairs. All of these wonderful attributes reinforce our efforts in building a stronger, safer, prouder city. I invite you to discover what we have known for years—that Newark is an authentic, diverse and dynamic destination for our residents and visitors alike. I welcome you and encourage you to explore and experience for yourself.

Sincerely,

Cory A. Booker, Mayor

Elizabeth

Elizabeth is New Jersey's fourth largest city, but people know that it was recently named one of "America's 50 Greenest Cities" by Popular Science magazine. South of Newark, Elizabeth offers scores of retail stores, with approximately 1,000 businesses taking part in the Urban Enterprise Zone program. It offers a 3.5 percent sales tax and like the rest of the state, there is no tax on clothes. If shopping isn't your fancy, Elizabeth offers a variety of culinary delights, particularly along Elizabeth Avenue. For more information, visit www.goelizabethnj.com.

Colleges & Universities

University Heights

Located in the Central Ward, this community got its name for its proximity to six institutions of higher education and is now home to over 40,000 students. Its main roadway, Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, is the address of many of its historic landmarks, such as Eberhardt Hall at NJIT, St. Mary's Parish, The Essex County Hall of Records and The Essex County Court House. From an architectural perspective, University Heights is home to one of the city's few concentrations of brownstones as well as the Paul Robeson Gallery at Rutgers University and the Weston Museum in the Van Houten Library at NJIT.

Parks & Recreation

Military Park

Initially designed as a training place for soldiers when Newark was planned in 1667, Military Park is aptly named. Located on Broad Street between Rector Street and Raymond Boulevard, the park became known as the "Town Commons" or "Lower Commons" in 1869. The park houses several statues of historic figures, including a bust of John F. Kennedy by Jacques Lipschitz, as well as the Wars of America monument created by renowned Mt. Rushmore sculptor Gutzon Borglum, which was unveiled in 1926.

Lincoln Park

Located in the Central Ward, this community was named in honor of President Abraham Lincoln, after he spoke on the steps of the former South Park Presbyterian Church in 1861. Lincoln Park began as a Colonial village and emerged as a bustling business and entertainment hub. Now the park is home to the annual Lincoln Park Music Festival, designed to continue to revitalize the community and celebrate Newark's center for culture, music and diversity.

Washington Park

Home to many commercial and public buildings, several of which have recently been renovated, this section of the Central Ward is known as Washington Park. Its 3.4-acre expanse is most famous for statues of historical figures, from George Washington to Christopher Columbus, and the Indian and the Puritan sculpture at the park's north. James Street Commons is a smaller historic area within the Washington Park area that is comprised of about 20 blocks of townhouses along Washington Park, Halsey Street, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard and James Street and borders the Newark Museum and Rutgers Business School.

Weequahic Park and Golf Course

Named by Lenni-Lenape Native Americans, this area of the South Ward was a vast farmland until the late 19th century, when it transformed into a thriving middle-class neighborhood. The second largest park in Essex County, Weequahic is perfect for tennis, jogging or a picnic. It features an 18-hole course that includes 5,579 yards of golf from the longest tees for a par of 70. Today, Weequahic's 311 acres are shaded by tree-lined streets, lush greenery and attractive Art Deco buildings.

Branch Brook Park

(973) 268-2300
(photograph above)

Named for a branch brook that flowed through the valley into the Passaic River, Newark's Branch Brook Park, designed by Frederick Law Olmsted, appears on both the New Jersey and national registers of historic places, and was the first county park to open for public use in the United States. Comprised of nearly 360 acres, the park is the largest developed park in Essex County and features open meadows, small patches of woodland and rolling terrain. Branch Brook Park is also the site of the annual Cherry Blossom Festival, which celebrates the more than 4,000 cherry trees that blossom in April.
